

Lyall D. Morrill

1907 - 1974

Lyall D. Morrill held his first full-time job at Sears, Roebuck and Company. As wartime struck the nation, he was led to the Harvard School of Business where he was commissioned as Lieutenant Commander in the Navy. Upon his return home, Morrill decided to make a complete change in his career path.

It was Morrill's ultimate goal to own his own business. Mr. Morrill began working for his brother, Wayne, at Morrill Motors. In 1952, he met the man that would ultimately become his partner in business, Chet Dekko. Together they started Lyall Electric in Kendallville, Indiana which later grew into Group Dekko International.
